

BURNS OLD GLORY
IN "MELTING POT"

Bouck White.

Bouck White of New York, leader of the Church of the Social Revolution, stood with arms folded, a pleased expression on his face, while an American flag was burned under his direction. Flags of other nations were burned at the same time in what White was pleased to call his "melting pot."

BLACK LINE
OF LOADED
PACK MULES

Is One of the Strangest Sights
to Be Met in the Mountain War Zone.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ITALIAN ARMY, June 9.—The black line of loaded pack mules, each led by an Alpine soldier, is one of the strangest sights to be met in the mountain war zone. On busy days this line may sometimes be seen winding its way from a valley five miles distant up the mountain passes to peaks ten thousand feet high.

The mule is at once the glory and the backbone of the mountain transportation system of the Italian army. It is particularly useful because it is unafraid. It itself lives in the mountains, often growing under the very noses of volcanoes and used to grazing while earthquakes threaten, at the front it hardly pricks its ears at artillery noises.

It is estimated that upwards of 250,000 mules are in service in the war zone. The most of them come from the Abruzzi mountains in the central part of Italy, but they have been requisitioned from every part of the kingdom, even from Sicily and Sardinia, together with their two-wheeled carts painted with scenes of provincial history.

To this mule in the early part of the Italy hitched much of its mauling and carrying and today, with plenty of fine roads and new bridges in the war zone, the mule still keeps pace with the automobile, the narrow gauge railway and the airline railways of the high mountains. This little mule, eleven to thirteen hands high, often hardly as large as a Texas pony, is different from other mules, burros and evil-tempered beasts. For one thing, it isn't stubborn. It doesn't stop its ears and lunge out with both heels, like its American brother. It is a patient, willing, hardy, affectionate animal that climbs a snowy mountain pass as surely as a cat on a fence. It is used for carrying up the mountains every article from a plank of soft pine to a cannon shell. If the Italians ever get over the mountains, they promise to remember the mule that helped on the job.

Temperance argument: The light of the sun is 600,000 greater than that of the moon when it is full.

WARM PRAISE BY DAVE HICKMAN
THE "OIL MAN"

Well Known Resident Found Nerv-Worth a Wonderful Nerve Tonic.

Almost everybody in Clarksburg knows Dave Hickman, the "Oil Man," of No. 1069 Pike street, and everybody knows him to be thoroughly reliable. Therefore, when a man of his type endorses Nerv-Worth over his own signature, the public is bound to bank on the remedy. Don't miss a word of what Mr. Hickman says:

"Two weeks ago I bought a bottle of Nerv-Worth for my wife, who suffered with sleeplessness, nervousness, pains across the small of her back and severe nervous headache. This trouble has been of five years' standing. Doctored some, but never got any relief. This one bottle of Nerv-Worth has eliminated her trouble. No headache, pains in the back gone, always good and rests fine. Good appetite, and take it all around she is better than she's been in all these years."

(Signed) "D.W. HICKMAN." Nerv-Worth has the same power over dizziness, bowel trouble, weakness, that tired, "draggy" feeling and low spirits that it has over the nervous troubles which made life miserable to Mrs. Hickman. And don't forget that you can test that power to your own satisfaction without risking a penny for if the medicine does not help Burke's drug store will hand your dollar back.—Advertisement.
